

Nonequilibrium phase transition in the coevolution of networks and opinions

By Petter Holme and M. E. J. Newman

Real social networks tend to divide into groups or communities of like-minded individuals.

- Become like-minded because they are connected via the network ?
- Form network connections because they are like-minded ?

Simple model which combines both behaviors.

